The program was conducted with an objective to inculcate statistical application in data interpretation of pharmaceuticals related to the design, formulation, characterization and biological assays.

The program started with inauguration function welcoming all the eminent speakers, dignitaries and delegates and launch of the sessions. Following the inaugural ceremony, the sessions started with the introduction of basic concepts of statistics and its significance along with fundamental Concepts to the delegates by the speakers. The afternoon session was equally insightful for the delegates to further learn about basics.

The consecutive sessions were interesting for the delegates to procure hands-on experience of handling data using different software tools including Features of SPSS, Data management, MS-EXCEL, statistical methods, ANOVA and design expert. It was a great opportunity for the participants to interact with the speakers and resolve their questions. The sessions were successfully concluded with a valedictory ceremony followed by certificate distribution to all the participants.

All in all, it was an informative week.

EVENT OVERVIEW:

Resource person Dr. SAI SAMPATH KUMAR NOSSAM & Ms. SALMA SULTANA explained the students about Poor nutrition prevent children from reaching their full cognitive and behavioral potential, thus influencing their lifetime learning. Some children never get enrolled in school because of severe health problems resulting from poor nutrition. Nutrition is an important foundation for health and development. Better nutrition means stronger immune systems, less illness, better health and healthy children can learn better. Healthy people are stronger, are more productive and more able to create opportunities to gradually break the cycles of both poverty and hunger in a sustainable Way. Better nutrition is a prime entry point to ending poverty and a milestone to achieving better quality of life. For instance an adequate nutrition during infancy is important for long-term growth and health. Some of the nutritional risk for infants includes anemia, jaundice, breastfeeding complications, and specific medical conditions etc. The sessions were successfully concluded with a valedictory ceremony followed by certificate distribution to all the participants.

C LANGUAGE

Date:

22-5-2022 TO 27-5-2022

INTRODUCTION

C language is a powerful and widely used programming language known for its efficiency and versatility. Developed in the early 1970s, C has stood the test of time and remains one of the most popular programming languages today. It forms the foundation for many other programming languages and operating systems, making it essential for anyone looking to delve deeper into software development.

Learning C Language:

Learning C provides a solid foundation in programming concepts such as variables, data types, control structures, functions, and pointers. It requires attention to detail and a good understanding of how computer memory and operations work at a low level.

Conclusion:

In summary, C language's efficiency, portability, and versatility make it a powerful tool for developing a wide range of software applications, from system software to embedded systems and beyond. Mastering C opens doors to understanding computer architecture, system programming, and other programming languages built upon its principles.

EVENT OVERVIEW:

Resource person Dr. P. PENCHALAI SIR & M. PARAM SHIVAM explained the students about C is a compiled language, meaning it is translated directly into machine code, making it highly efficient in terms of execution speed and memory usage. Programs written in C can be easily ported or adapted to different platforms and operating systems with minimal changes. C comes with a rich set of built-in functions that provide access to low-level operations such as input/output and memory management. C is widely used for developing system software like operating systems, compilers and device drivers due to its direct access to hardware and efficient execution. C language's efficiency, portability and versatility make it a powerful tool for developing a wide range of software applications, from system software to embedded systems and beyond. Mastering C opens doors to understanding computer architecture, system programming, and other programming languages built upon its principles. The Sessions were successfully concluded with a valedictory ceremony followed by certificate distribution to all the participants
